PERSONAL GREETING is given Ricky Cook by Santa Claus himself. Santa visited approximately 50 children on Thursday at Harbor Hospital. Most of the children gathered in a conference room for the visit with the jolly old gentleman but Santa later went from room to room to see in-bed patients.

SANTA VISITS CHILDREN AT HARBOR HOSPITAL

Santa Claus made his first call at Los Angeles County's new Harbor General Hospital, Thursday, Dec. 19, to deliver toys and other gifts to approximately fifty children in the Pediatric wards.

Santa's appearance was by invitation of the hospital's Volunteers for Children who, since 1955 have hosted a Christmas party for Pediatric patients, gifts for which are provided by the United Welders of America, Local 2, Hawthorne.

Norman Adams, a hospital Security Guard, played the role of St. Nick and arrived on the sixth floor pediatric area aboard a sled via an elevator.

Ambulatory children gathered in the doctors conference room where Santa made his first appearance and passed out gifts during a cookie and ice cream party. Then the bearded one went from room to room to cheer inbed patients.

This was the seventh year the welders provided the gifts for the Volunteers' party with funds from a turkey raffle among members.

Mario Moreno, Local President, was guest of Mrs. George Morehart serving her third term as president of the Volunteers for children.

IDEA FOR TODAY

Some say that a shadow of fear of the "bomb" is cast across American society. When a people are obsessed with shadow, it is they alone who cast that shadow.

BEAUTY

The embellishments of the person are poor substitutes for the charms of being, shining respendent and eternal over age and decay.

—Mary Baker Eddy
